

I strongly FAVOR national policy that reduces phone solicitations.
I strongly OPPOSE any national policy that would decrease the protections we now enjoy in Indiana. Before Indiana's no call law went into effect, we had at least three or four solicitation calls every evening. Now we have none. Some of the biggest offenders were organizations we already did business with - like phone companies, insurance companies, and charge card companies. They would call and insist it was not a solicitation call - they just wanted to inform us of an "opportunity". It was still an unwelcome interruption.
PLEASE use Indiana's legislation as a model for the national policy.
It has been effective, and we don't want to lose any of its protections.
